We have heard from many of our members that they are concerned about interest rates. After a prolonged period at near zero, the Federal Reserve has begun gradually increasing, and that is likely to change the financial services landscape a bit. At this point, we have only seen two modest increases, but expectations are that in 2017 the Fed will raise rates at least twice more with perhaps a few more on the way in 2018. Yes, we have all heard this story before - as recently as last year. However, the favorable economic environment appears to make increases more sustainable this time.

Of course, our members have concerns that the cost of borrowing will increase as rates rise, especially those who are considering a major purchase like a home or auto. Unfortunately, these concerns are likely valid; however, your Credit Union doesn’t exist to maximize profits but to serve members. As such, we expect to keep credit available for those who need it while taking a measured approach to loan price adjustments. Our focus remains on return of value to members.

It’s also important to remember that interest rate increases have some upside. Member savers will likely see increased earnings on their savings. Additionally, our dollar strengthens when U.S. interest rates increase relative to the global economy which makes oversees travel and imported goods less expensive. Finally, an increasing rate environment is a clear signal that the Fed sees a period of prolonged growth for the U.S. economy, which is always welcome news.

Regardless of your situation, you have already taken the most important step in managing your finances as interest rates change, and that is doing business with an institution that puts you ahead of profits. Kinecta has a staff of financial professionals who are happy to provide advice you can trust. If you have any concerns or questions about your finances, please do not hesitate to call us, come by or visit online. We’d love to hear from you!
IF TAXES ARE A CERTAINTY, IT IS CERTAINLY TAX SEASON!

Preparing your taxes can be time consuming and a little frustrating. Depending on the outcome, tax time can be a boon to the wallet or a drag on it. There is good news this year, though – some from the government and some from Kinecta.

On Uncle Sam’s side, the good news is that the deadline this year is Tuesday, April 18 so you have a little more time to get organized. Before we get to the good news from your Credit Union, let’s look at a few tips for pulling your tax information together, preparing your taxes and making that deadline:

It’s never too early to organize
As soon as your tax documents begin to arrive, file them so they’ll all be in one place when you need them. Early in tax season is also a good time to look for receipts you may have saved during 2016.

Consider your life changes
Did you get married? Buy a house? Have a baby? Retire? All of these impact your tax situation and requires documentation. While you surely haven’t forgotten any of these life events, you may not have considered them in the light of your taxes. Now is a good time to start.

Get a retirement benefit now
Contributions to an IRA, 401(k) or SEP IRA (for business owners) can increase your retirement savings and decrease this year’s taxable income, thus saving you money, or even getting you a refund at tax time.

Use the best software
With the quality of today’s tax software, most people won’t need a tax professional. If you are going to do your taxes yourself, use name brand, high quality software. And that bring us to some of the good news from Kinecta.

Kinecta is partnering with TurboTax® to save you $15 on the premiere tax preparation software. The good news doesn’t stop there. A Kinecta Share Certificate would be a great place to invest your tax refund.

Finally, our Financial Consultants will be happy to provide you with a free, no-obligation portfolio review.¹

Consult with your tax advisor.

From April 30 through May 6, the country will be celebrating the Small Business Administration sponsored Small Business Week. This week is set aside to honor entrepreneurs and owners who put everything they’ve got into businesses that, according to sba.gov, employ more than half the working people in America and create two of every three new jobs. Hooray for small business!

During this important celebration we hope our members will learn about and support small, local business. It’s easy to find them, just look around. You’ll notice local hairdressers, clothing stores, and restaurants that offer great service and great prices.

If your eyes are just drawn to big box stores and national chains, take a look at Groupon or Living Social to find local companies, all offering terrific introductory deals. The difference between shopping or eating at a small business is much like the difference between using a large bank and being a member of Kinecta.

Once you’ve found a few small businesses you’d like to support, patronize them, then take to social media to share your experience, or write a review. You can also recommend your favorites to friends and family. For every big box hardware, supermarket or toy store, there are excellent small, local alternatives waiting for you.

And if you are a small business owner, Kinecta can help there too. We offer a complete suite of business products to help your small business run smoothly and flourish. We look forward to helping and saluting you during the next national Small Business Week.
